

Q1: Question: True/False - In Python programming, variables do not need to be declared before they are used.

- True

- False

Answer: True

Explanation: Unlike some other programming languages that require explicit declaration of variable types, in Python the interpreter infers data type at runtime based on the value assigned to a variable. Therefore, you don't have to declare it explicitly as long as there is no conflict with existing names and scope rules are followed.